10. Special features:

The programme draws on the multitude of approaches within International Relations to the study and examination of global politics, the shift in balances of power, and contemporary issues in war, peace, security, and regional geopolitics. The programme enhances students' competencies in engaging with the approaches of classical International Relations Theory, Strategic Studies, national security policy, and more.

To reflect the special focus of the MA programme, students taking this programme will be required to choose a dissertation topic that aligns with the many controversies, themes, debates, and issues raised in International Relations.

Students are able to engage with opportunities outside of the core programme by attending events organized by HyPIR research clusters, which include prestigious guest speakers which often include practitioners, panel events, an annual postgraduate research conference, lunchtime seminars and staff research peer review sessions, all of which help provide experience for our students to enhance professional transferrable skills and develop their awareness of professional academic practices and developments in the wider world with guest speakers.

The programme is based on a social constructivist learning model and includes blended learning environments.

10a. Research-inspired Education

Students on this programme will advance through the four quadrants of the University of Leicester Research-inspired Education Framework as follows:

RiE Quadrant	Narrative
Research-briefed Bringing staff research content into the curriculum.	• Research-briefed Our students will be exposed to an inspiring and attractive curriculum in International Relations, Human Rights and Security Studies drawing on the expertise and internationally recognised research produced in the School of History, Politics and International Relations and beyond. All teaching staff are engaged in research and bring their subject expertise and enthusiasm for inclusive, rigorous research into their teaching practice. Through our seminars, workshops and assessments our teaching introduces students to an advanced curriculum and key innovations in our field, situating contemporary developments within appropriate conceptional and theoretical frameworks.
Research-based Framed enquiry for exploring existing knowledge.	• Research-based Students are encouraged and supported to draw from a comprehensive range of published research and demonstrate a robust critical engagement with it. Typical assessments include essays, article analysis, policy and conceptual analysis. Seminars involve students working in small groups on tasks that require them to identify, critically analyse, and apply concepts.
Research-oriented Students critique published research content and process.	• Research-oriented Our students are taught the key skills necessary to analyse and critically engage with published research, including how it is conceived, produced, used and communicated.
Research-apprenticed Experiencing the research process and methods; building new knowledge.	• Research-apprenticed Our students are an important part of our research environment and are encouraged to take an active part in our learning community. MA Students finish the programme with a capstone 15,000-word dissertation on a topic of their choice. They are supported with a dissertation module, to develop their research skills, which helps them transition from being students to independent researchers.

As part of studying at a research-intensive university, students on this programme have the following extra or co-curricular opportunities available to them to gain exposure to research culture:

Our students have numerous opportunities to gain exposure to research culture through extra-curricular events. These include the popular roundtable seminar series, in which roundtable discussions featuring a varying mix of staff and student researchers come together to discuss contemporary issues. Roundtables in the last year have covered topics such as the rise of the far-right and misogyny, and the 2024 U.S. election, and offer research-led opening remarks from staff with relevant expertise, followed by audience questions. In addition, a popular film club offers introductory remarks and a Q&A led by a staff member whose research connects to the film being screened. These events allow students to engage with cutting edge research, and to experience and participate in lively academic discussion. MA students are invited to join HyPIR's research clusters which bring together academics, doctoral researchers, and PGT students working on projects in similar subject areas (Feminism, Global Ethics and Politics Theory; Intelligence, Security and Strategic Studies; Parties, Parliament, and Public Opinion). Recent cluster activities have included workshops, roundtables, and guided art gallery visits. Our introduction to teaching programme for doctoral students brings research students into the classroom creating opportunities to learn, network and be inspired.

11. Indications of programme quality:

- Considerable departmental experience in blended learning as a result of the development and success of our existing DL programmes;
- Presentations from current students and former students at national and international conferences;
- Regular progression of former students into academic posts and postdoctoral and research projects;
- Consistent, positive feedback from current and former students;
- Consistent positive feedback from external examiners.

12. Scheme of Assessment

Senate Regulation 6: Regulations governing taught postgraduate programmes of study applies

13. Progression points

As defined in Senate Regulation 6: Regulations governing Taught Postgraduate Programmes of Study (see Senate Regulations)
