10. Special features

This programme has been mapped to the Professional Standards Framework (PSF) to Descriptors 1 and 2. The award comprises two modules (15-credits and 45-credits). Successful completion of the first module aligns to Descriptor 1 and thus awards Associate Fellowship. Successful completion of both modules leads to recognition of Fellowship (aligned to Descriptor 2 of the PSF) and the Postgraduate Certificate in Academic and Professional Practice.

10a. Research-inspired Education

Students on this programme will advance through the four quadrants of the University of Leicester Research-inspired Education Framework as follows:

RiE Quadrant	Narrative
Research-briefed Bringing staff research content into the curriculum. Research-based Framed enquiry for exploring existing knowledge. Research-oriented Students critique published research content and process. Research-apprenticed Experiencing the research process and methods;	The PGCAPP (Leicester) is designed to enable participants to become critically reflective Higher Education practitioners. The programme takes global perspectives, grounds them in core scholarship of learning and teaching, and embeds them into the local strategies, policies and practices of the University of Leicester. Furthermore, the PGCAPP is aligned to a globally recognised, evidence-informed, sectoral framework, Advance HE’s Professional Standards Framework (PSF). <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Research-briefed: The PGCAPP is grounded in the fundamental learning theories that shape and influence the design and delivery of learning, teaching and assessment in Higher Education. Nevertheless, module conveners embed their own expertise and research into the curriculum, to enable participants to engage in the contemporary issues in HE. Areas of specialism and foci include: reflective practice development; development of student critical thinking; AI in learning; educational leadership, coaching and mentoring. • Research-based: The learning activities and assessments on the programme are designed to enable participants to explore authentic interdisciplinary approaches to learning and teaching. Using evidence-informed pedagogy, participants critically reflect on their own practice and context, to develop strategies to enhance their practice and learners’ experience. • Research Oriented: One of the principle learning objectives of the programme is to develop participants critical analysis of the scholarship of teaching and learning. This will enable them to align their practices to the literature and draw inspiration. The interdisciplinary nature of the cohort means the PGCAPP is often the first time some participants engage with the scholarship of learning and teaching. Nevertheless, the PGCAPP uses peer-learning to enable participants to conduct the critique of the scholarship in a supportive, collaborative learning environment. Throughout participants conduct critical reflection, aligning their practice to the UK Professional Standards Framework.. • Research Apprenticed: Throughout the programme participants are required to conduct critical reflection of their practice through Brookfield’s building new knowledge.	(1995) lenses. This culminates in participants conducting an ‘action research’ intervention into their own practice and evaluating the impact.

As part of studying at a research-intensive university, students on this programme have the following extra or co-curricular opportunities available to them to gain exposure to research culture:

Whilst the PGCAPP is informed by grounded and contemporary pedagogic research, the programme positions itself as the baseline level required to be an effective Higher Education practitioner. Therefore, within the delivery of the programme opportunities to engage in further development of practice and exposure to pedagogy are embedded. These include: signposting to other relevant professional development, including workshops and the University Learning and Teaching conference, where some participants may even choose to present their work. Furthermore, opportunities to join and engage with the University of Leicester’s Education Academy Communities of Practice around the institution are highlighted. This includes an online community of practice for PGCAPP alumni.

Teaching on this programme will be research-informed (it draws consciously on systematic inquiry into the teaching and learning process itself) in the following way:

The School supports all staff involved in teaching to gain an accredited Higher Education teaching qualification, in which they demonstrate their use of teaching theory to support their own practice and reflect on their current teaching and continuing professional development.

The PGCAPP is aligned between Education Services and the School of Education, therefore the content and teaching on the programme is informed by the institutional strategies, objectives and policies of the University, the views and perspectives of current students, and by educators that actively engage with and conduct contemporary pedagogic research. Furthermore, the programme fully aligns to the evidence-informed Professional Standards Frameworks to enable participants to receive FHEA.

Those that lead the programme are engaged with and/or leading members of internal and external Communities of Practice (CoPs). These include the University’s Education Academy and external CoPs such as, SEDA, BERA, ALT-C and Advance HE. Learning from these communities and engagement in contemporary scholarship enables emergent innovation and perspectives from across the sector to be integrated into the curriculum.
