10. Progression points:

Students must accumulate 120 credits in each year. First year modules do not form part of the degree classification since it is a qualifying year. In the second and third years, students must accumulate 60 credits per semester.

Subject to the achievement of an overall average of 40%, modules may be passed at a level sufficient for the award of credit (marks between 35% to 39%). This means that students with a credit-weighted average of less than 40% overall will be deemed to have failed all modules in which a mark of less than 40% has been obtained; students with a credit-weighted average of 40% or more overall will be deemed to have failed all modules in which a mark of less than 35% has been obtained.

Degree classification is based upon modules totalling 240 credits (360 credits for the four-year variant of this degree programme) successfully accumulated from second and third year modules, in accordance with the requirements for the regulations of the degree.

Students on the four-year variant of this degree programme must have no more than 30 credits outstanding before entering their third year (year abroad).

Students on the four-year variant of this degree programme must have no more than 30 credits of year two modules outstanding before entering their final year. A student who does not achieve the threshold level will normally be required to transfer to the three-year variant of this programme, but will be considered by a progression board on a case-by-case basis prior to entering the final year of their studies.

In accordance with Senate Regulation 5: Regulations governing undergraduate programmes of study, in cases where a student has failed to meet a requirement to progress he or she will normally be required to withdraw from the course.

11. Scheme of Assessment

This programme follows the standard scheme of award and classification set out in Senate Regulation 5.

12. Special features:

Students are eligible to apply to transfer to a 4-year Joint English and American Studies degree, with a year abroad, either

1. in the United States or Canada
2. or at one of the European partner institutions of the School of Arts (English).

An array of research-driven Special Subjects are offered in the second and third years of the degree. The programme, as a whole, offers choice at every level of the degree and the ability to complete a self-selected piece of research in the dissertation.

13. Indications of programme quality

English at UOL has been consistently rated highly in the UK. It has been judged 'excellent' in teaching and highly rated in the last REF exercise. The Centre for American Studies has been rated in the top five American Studies undergraduate programmes in the UK. The Centre for American Studies has come first in the National Student Survey on numerous occasions over the past eight years.

BA ENGLISH AND AMERICAN STUDIES WITH A YEAR ABROAD

Students will be eligible, at the end of their first year, to transfer to a 4-year joint English and American Studies degree, with a year abroad spent either in the United States, or in the European Union at one of the partner institutions of the School of English, subject to the availability of places and satisfactory academic performance.

FIRST AND SECOND YEAR MODULES

The first and second year will be the same as for BA English and American Studies (above)

THIRD YEAR MODULES

The third year will be spent taking modules at a partner institution in either the United States or the European Union.

FOURTH YEAR MODULES

The fourth year of studies will be as for the third year of the BA English and American Studies (above), but for students taking the American Studies dissertation option, students will take the following modules instead:

SEMESTER 1
AM3002	Dissertation with Research in the United States (A)	30
SEMESTER 2
AM3002	Dissertation With Research in the United States (B)	15

Guided Independent Learning

University students are expected to engage in independent study in order to develop their knowledge and skills. The pedagogy of university English has throughout its history been centred on students' independent reading of literary texts before scheduled teaching events, such as seminars and lectures. While each student will approach this work differently, independent study is guided by the publication of learning outcomes, assessment criteria, seminar schedules and reading lists. Further scaffolding for independent study may be provided, where appropriate, by seminar tutors in advance of seminars, by Autonomous Learning Groups, by dissertation supervisors and by personal tutors, who will advise on your academic development across your programme of study. Additionally, students are expected to make use of feedback on their assessments to develop their approach to their studies, and encouraged to discuss their work with their peers outside as well as in seminars.

The way you divide your time will depend on your own working patterns and vary according to the time of year. It is difficult to quantify the time it takes to learn, but the convention in the world of higher education is that one credit is earned for each ten hours worked. This comes close to a 35 hour week in term time, so you can expect to be working for up to ten hours per week per module outside of class.

The advice below will vary depending on the requirements of each module. On literature modules you may spend a large part of your time reading the primary texts; on Language and Creative Writing modules, the primary tasks will be different, for instance drafting or revising a written text on a Creative Writing course; in English Language assignments, you may be required to spend some time on ethically collecting data for analysis. Below is a rough guide:

In the teaching semesters, you might find it useful to spend roughly the suggested amount of time on each of these activities:

Seminar preparation (e.g. reading and taking notes on set texts and wider reading, or drafting/redrafting a text; participating in ALGs; preparing presentations): 60%

Research, reading and writing your assessments: 40% (more if you have an assessment due in mid term).

In the Winter and Easter vacations, during the time you have available, you might expect to spend roughly the suggested amount of time on each of these activities:

Reading, researching, planning and writing your assessments: 80%

Reading ahead for next semester's modules: 20%

In the Summer vacation, you should try to set time aside for reading ahead and planning for the coming semester.
