10. Progression points:

In order to proceed to the second year of the course, a student must obtain 60 credit-units for three core modules of English and 60 credit-units for two core modules of History and one History option. Subject to the achievement of an overall average of 40%, modules may be passed at a level sufficient for the award of credit (marks between 35% to 39%). This means that students with a credit-weighted average of less than 40% overall will be deemed to have failed all modules in which a mark of less than 40% has been obtained; students with a credit-weighted average of 40% or more overall will be deemed to have failed all modules in which a mark of less than 35% has been obtained.

In order to proceed to the third year of the course a student must obtain 60 credit-units for three core modules of English and 60 credit-units for History, to include the core module Perceiving the Past. Students must either take The Historian's Craft module if they plan to complete a History dissertation in the third year, or two approved History option modules, or one approved History option and one Variety module, if they plan to complete an English dissertation in the third year. The requirements for obtaining the credit-units for each of the six double-modules taken in English and History are the same as in the first year.

In accordance with Senate Regulation 5: Regulations governing undergraduate programmes of study, in cases where a student has failed to meet a requirement to progress he or she will be required to withdraw from the course.

For HS coded modules, certain modules include qualifying elements which students have to pass in order to obtain credits for the module. Please refer to individual module specification forms for further information.

Degree classification is based upon modules totalling 240 credits (360 credits for the four-year variant of this degree programme) successfully accumulated from second and third year modules, in accordance with the requirements for the regulations of the degree.

For students on the Year Aboard programme in order to proceed to the fourth year of the course students must pass their year abroad. The year abroad does not otherwise count towards the final classification of the degree.

Students on the four-year variant of this degree programme must have no more than 30 credits outstanding before entering their third year (year abroad).

Students on the four-year variant of this degree programme must have no more than 30 credits of year two modules outstanding before entering their final year. A student who does not achieve the threshold level will normally be required to transfer to the three-year variant of this programme, but will be considered by a progression board on a case-by-case basis prior to entering the final year of their studies.

In cases where a student has failed to meet a requirement to progress he or she may be required to withdraw from the course.

11. Scheme of Assessment

This programme follows the standard scheme of award and classification set out in Senate Regulation 5.

12. Indications of programme quality

According to a recent edition of the Times Good University Guide, the School of English falls within the top 10 English departments in England. We have consistently excellent results in the National Student Survey with ratings of 90% or over since the survey began in 2005.

In a recent Periodic Developmental Review, the panel's report on the School was extremely positive: 'Throughout discussions with both staff and students the Panel noted a very collegial and student-centered approach to all the School's activities. The Panel particularly noted a culture of embedding the assurance of quality and standards into all areas of the School. The enhancement of the student experience was also actively encouraged and fostered. The Panel were impressed with the knowledge of the Chairs of the School's committees and their engagement with managing and enhancing the learning opportunities of students across the provision. The Panel also praised the leadership of the Head of School who actively and knowledgeably oversaw the School's activity. The Panel had confidence in the management of quality assurance and quality enhancement processes in place within the School to assure the quality of the learning opportunities available to students and to comply with both the QAA codes of Practice and the University Codes of Practice.'

Guided Independent Learning

University students are expected to engage in independent study in order to develop their knowledge and skills. The pedagogy of university English has throughout its history been centred on students' independent reading of literary texts before scheduled teaching events, such as seminars and lectures. While each student will approach this work differently, independent study is guided by the publication of learning outcomes, assessment criteria, seminar schedules and reading lists. Further scaffolding for independent study may be provided, where appropriate, by seminar tutors in advance of seminars, by Autonomous Learning Groups, by dissertation supervisors and by personal tutors, who will advise on your academic development across your programme of study. Additionally, students are expected to make use of feedback on their assessments to develop their approach to their studies, and encouraged to discuss their work with their peers outside as well as in seminars.

The way you divide your time will depend on your own working patterns and vary according to the time of year. It is difficult to quantify the time it takes to learn, but the convention in the world of higher education is that one credit is earned for each ten hours worked. This comes close to a 35 hour week in term time, so you can expect to be working for up to ten hours per week per module outside of class.

The advice below will vary depending on the requirements of each module. On literature modules you may spend a large part of your time reading the primary texts; on Language and Creative Writing modules, the primary tasks will be different, for instance drafting or revising a written text on a Creative Writing course; in English Language assignments, you may be required to spend some time on ethically collecting data for analysis. Below is a rough guide:

In the teaching semesters, you might find it useful to spend roughly the suggested amount of time on each of these activities:

Seminar preparation (e.g. reading and taking notes on set texts and wider reading, or drafting/redrafting a text; participating in ALGs; preparing presentations): 60%

Research, reading and writing your assessments: 40% (more if you have an assessment due in mid term).

In the Winter and Easter vacations, during the time you have available, you might expect to spend roughly the suggested amount of time on each of these activities:

Reading, researching, planning and writing your assessments: 80%

Reading ahead for next semester's modules: 20%

In the Summer vacation, you should try to set time aside for reading ahead and planning for the coming semester.
