In cases where a student has failed to meet a requirement to progress he or she will be required to withdraw from the course

For HS coded modules, certain modules include qualifying elements which students have to pass in order to obtain credits for the module. Please refer to individual module specification forms for further information.

a) Course transfers

[n/a]

b) Year abroad

For the Year Abroad variant (for experiential Year Abroad only) the additional progression points apply

c) Year in Industry

For the Year in Industry variant, the additional progression points apply

11. Criteria for award and classification

This programme follows the standard scheme of undergraduate award and classification set out in Senate Regulations – see the version of Senate Regulation 5 governing undergraduate programmes relevant to the year of entry.

12. Special features

At the end of the first year students are eligible to apply to transfer to a 4-year Joint History and American studies degree, with a year abroad either:

1. in the U.S.A.

2.or at one of the European partner institutions of the School of History, Politics and International Relations.

For the Year Abroad variant (for experiential Year Abroad only) the additional Special Features apply

For the Year in Industry variant. The University recognises that undertaking a work placement as part the programme of study can enhance career prospects and provide added value, and as such this programme includes a 'year in industry' variant.

By experiencing real-world scenarios and applying skills and knowledge to a professional environment, students can gain a unique insight into how their studies can be utilised in industry. This will not only showcase their abilities to future employers but will also enhance their studies upon returning to university to complete your programme.

To understand the special features for year in industry undergraduate programme variants, this programme specification should be read in conjunction with the programme specification content which can be found here. This outlines details including programme aims, support, progression and duration.

13. Indications of programme quality

The History and American Studies programmes have been consistently praised by external examiners for their geographical, chronological and thematic breadth. BA HISTORY AND AMERICAN STUDIES WITH A YEAR ABROAD

The above four-year degree is also available. Students may only enter the four-year variant of the relevant three-year programme by transferring at the end of the first or second-year and on the recommendation of the heads of the divisions concerned. Transfer is not automatic, and those wishing to transfer will have to satisfy the American Studies History Board of Examiners in terms of both their academic performance and their good academic standing. The programme structure is as for first, second and final year modules for the three-year programme (above).

There are two routes a student could take:

Either

1) A year spent in North America in which the marks a student obtains count towards their final degree classification.

2) Students may opt to participate in the Year Abroad programme like other joint degree history students:

This programme is assessed as a Four Year Programme with a year out, with the year abroad treated as the 'year out'. The year out does not count towards the final classification, but a student must pass all modules taken during the year abroad to proceed to the final year of the programme. The second and fourth years are used in determining the degree class, according to the standard scheme for three-year programmes. Degrees will be classified using the same scheme as for three- year programmes.

To take part in the Year Abroad programme students must pass all modules in years 1 and 2, and achieve a credit weighted average of 55% in year 2. They must also have learned the language of the destination country, providing the Office with a language certificate as evidence of satisfactory completion of training through the 'Languages at Leicester scheme' or an appropriate alternative. Failure to meet these criteria will lead to the School recommending transfer to the 3-year degree which the student would otherwise have taken.
