7. Programme aims

The programme aims to:

- Provide a coherent and attractive curriculum by utilising the teaching and research expertise of the Department of Politics and International Relations and the Department of Sociology;
- Provide a rigorous programme of study, embodying a disciplinary flexibility, across both subjects and by exploring the intellectual synergies between Politics and Sociology;
- Enable students to apply a theoretical understanding of Politics within a sociological and contemporary context;
- Develop student expertise in the key areas of both disciplines – allowing for dissertation specialisation in the final year;
- Provide a supportive, stimulating and challenging learning experience for students;
- Assist students to develop a range of cognitive and social skills relevant to their intellectual, vocational and personal development;
- Equip graduates with skills of research and analysis as a foundation for further study at postgraduate level in Politics, Sociology and cognate disciplines.

For those on the Year Abroad:

- provide an opportunity for Leicester students to spend their third year abroad, studying at a partner institution in Europe or a partner institution on another continent as part of the Study Abroad exchange programme;
- develop study skills in another university following a guided programme of learning for the period spent abroad;
- provide an opportunity for exchange students from partner institutions in another country to study in the United Kingdom;
- provide and build on links between the University of Leicester and its partner institutions
- develop an awareness of Politics and Sociology education in another country;
- develop a critical understanding of the different national, international and European political and social phenomena;
- develop an appreciation of the different approaches to the study of Politics and Sociology adopted by different types of scholars both in the United Kingdom and abroad;
- develop linguistic skills in a European language if the student goes to a partner university where the teaching language is not English.

10. Progression points

The programme follows Senate Regulation 5: Regulations governing undergraduate programmes of study.

In cases where a student has failed to meet a requirement to progress he or she will be required to withdraw from the course.

11. Scheme of Assessment:

Scheme of Assessment: This programme follows the standard scheme of award and classification set out in Senate Regulation 5

Application to Transfer from BA Politics and Sociology to BA Politics and Sociology with a Year Abroad

Students are invited to apply at the end of their first or second year to transfer to the BA Politics and Sociology with a Year Abroad.

Progression from 2nd year to year abroad

Students may progress to the year abroad with no more than 30 credits of failed modules in year 2. Good attendance and observation of academic obligations must continue to be maintained throughout year 2. Failure to do so may result in the opportunity to study abroad being withdrawn and the student being transferred to the BA Politics and Sociology (without year abroad) or withdrawn from the course entirely.

For the year abroad year students are required to complete the equivalent of 60 ECTS if studying at a European partner institution.

For a student to progress to the final year of the BA with a Year Abroad programme the following will apply:

- i. If the student is studying and being assessed in a foreign language he/she has to pass at least half of his/her second semester modules in the partner institution. This requirement emphasises that the year abroad is to be taken seriously as a period of study but is not so onerous as to negatively impact students on this programme. If a student has failed to pass half the credits in his/her second semester during the year abroad, including resit options as per the partner institution's rules, by the Board of Examiners, the Board will consider whether the student should have to transfer on to the BA Politics and Sociology (without year abroad) for their final year, taking their overall attendance and observation of academic obligations into consideration.
- ii. If the student is studying and being assessed in English he/she has to achieve an average of 50% for the whole year. If a student has failed to achieve an average of 50% for the year, including resit options as per the partner institution's rules, by the Board of Examiners, the Board will consider whether the student should have to transfer on to the BA Politics and Sociology (without year abroad) for their final year, taking their overall attendance and observation of academic obligations into consideration.

- iii. If the student is studying and being assessed in a combination of English and a Foreign Language the progression rules used will be based on the language used to teach the majority of modules. Therefore, if the majority of modules are taught in English the rules described in ii) above will apply, and if the majority of modules are taught in a Foreign Language the rules described in i) above will apply.

The year abroad will not contribute towards the overall classification, and will therefore be assessed on a pass or fail basis.

12. Special features

Students learning experience is enhanced by both Departments' strong commitment to developing synergy between its research and teaching activities.

Students may apply to transfer to the BA Politics and Sociology with a Year Abroad after successful completion of the first year and subsequent successful completion of the second year.

The BA Politics and Sociology with a Year Abroad provides for students spending their third year at one of our partner institutions and then returning to Leicester for their final year.

12a. Research-inspired Education

Students on this programme will advance through the four quadrants of the University of Leicester Research-inspired Education Framework as follows:

RiE Quadrant	Narrative
Research-briefed Bringing staff research content into the curriculum.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Research-briefed Our students will be exposed to an inspiring and attractive curriculum in Politics and Sociology drawing on the expertise and internationally recognised research produced in the School of History, Politics and International Relations and beyond. All teaching staff are engaged in research and bring their subject expertise and enthusiasm for inclusive, rigorous research into their teaching practice. Through our lectures, seminars, workshops and assessments our teaching introduces students to core curriculum and key innovations in our field, situating contemporary developments within appropriate conceptual and theoretical frameworks. In Sociology students will be exposed to challenging learning, which is inspired and informed by our cutting-edge research. All of Sociology teaching staff on the programme are engaged in research, allowing them to use their experiences and findings in their teaching.
Research-based Framed enquiry for exploring existing knowledge.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Research-based Students are encouraged and supported to draw from a comprehensive range of published research and demonstrate a robust critical engagement with it. Typical assessments include essays, article analysis, annotated bibliographies, policy and conceptual analysis. In Sociology, students take part in a variety of activities which are based on real world issues. They will learn to apply their knowledge of theoretical concepts and ideas to a range of different social contexts.
Research-oriented Students critique published	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Research-oriented Our students are taught the key skills necessary to analyse and critically engage with published research, including how it is conceived, produced, used and communicated. In Sociology students will be challenged to critically appraise a range of research articles that have

research content and process. Research-apprenticed Experiencing the research process and methods; building new knowledge.	been published in a range of formats. They will learn to recognise the limitations of various methodological approaches the requirements for ethical practice. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Research-apprenticed Our students are an important part of our research environment and are encouraged to take an active part in our learning community. From year 1, students are encouraged to ask big questions about the world. Through training and practice they learn the academic skills necessary to transform those questions into independent research projects. In their final year students produce a dissertation, an independently conceived, planned, and presented piece of research. Students who opt to do a dissertation in Sociology will be guided through the research process by an experienced researcher. Training will be provided on both qualitative and quantitative research methodologies, providing an excellent foundation on which to undertake their own ethical research

As part of studying at a research-intensive university, students on this programme have the following extra or co-curricular opportunities available to them to gain exposure to research culture:

Our students have numerous opportunities to gain exposure to research culture through extra-curricular events. These include the popular roundtable seminar series, in which roundtable discussions featuring a varying mix of staff and student researchers come together to discuss contemporary issues. Roundtables in the last year have covered topics such as the rise of the far-right and misogyny, and the 2024 U.S. election, and offer research-led opening remarks from staff with relevant expertise, followed by audience questions. In addition, a popular film club offers introductory remarks and a Q&A led by a staff member whose research connects to the film being screened. These events allow students to engage with cutting edge research, and to experience and participate in lively academic discussion. The School has a rich culture of extra-curricular research seminars and public lectures, organised by the Centre for Urban History, the Centre for Local and Regional History, the Stanley Burton Centre for Holocaust and Genocide Studies, and the Leicester Medieval Research Centre. These events bring distinguished researchers to campus, and undergraduate as well as postgraduate students are welcome to participate.

Sociology's well-renowned Scarman and Neustadt lectures take place each year and students studying BA Politics and Sociology are invited to attend. The topics of these important lectures change each time in order to ensure that our students are exposed to a range of cutting-edge contemporary issues, presented by leading figures in their fields. The School of Criminology, Sociology and Social Policy also holds a monthly research seminar series, whereby staff showcase their latest collaborative research projects to staff and students alike. This provides another opportunity for students to hear about our interdisciplinary research outside of the traditional classroom.

Teaching on this programme will be research-informed (it draws consciously on systematic inquiry into the teaching and learning process itself) in the following way:

The School supports all staff involved in teaching to gain an accredited Higher Education teaching qualification, in which they demonstrate their use of teaching theory to support their own practice and reflect on their current teaching and continuing professional development.

Through routine peer observation of teaching and feedback, teachers in the School are encouraged to reflect on their own practice, and to share, support, and develop as a learning and teaching community. The School holds an annual Teaching Away Day as well as termly teaching meetings for the Politics team to develop ideas around best practice. These events allow for in-depth discussion of teaching, including the interface with research and how we support students to become research-briefed, research-based, research-oriented and research-apprenticed.

13. Indications of programme quality

Consistently positive feedback from External Examiners over a number of years. Highly positive outcome of the Periodic Developmental Review undertaken in 2014.

14. External Examiner(s) reports

The details of the External Examiner(s) for this programme and the most recent External Examiners' reports can be found here.

For those on a Year Abroad

The third year will be spent abroad either taking approved courses amounting to 120 Leicester credits in an institution associated with the Department of Politics and International Relations or under the University's Study Abroad programme. Students will be required to complete the approved courses satisfactorily. Passing examinations in those courses shall be regarded as evidence of the students having completed them satisfactorily. Students who, in the opinion of the Board of Examiners, have not satisfactorily followed the approved courses at the overseas institution will not normally be allowed to proceed to the final year of the course, but may be permitted to transfer to the final year of BA Politics and Sociology without year abroad.

The year abroad will not contribute towards the overall classification, and will therefore be assessed on a pass or fail basis.
